

COED ANGELS

A welcome aboard for the team.

Counting the cadence during drill.

This Week's PICTURE SHOW—AP Newsfeatures.

You don't have to be an air stewardess to be an angel—but you have to be an angel to be an air stewardess at Ohio State University.

The angels at Ohio State are the members (about 50 in number, all coeds) of "Angel Flight," a service organization sponsored by the campus Air Force ROTC cadets.

The girls are stewardesses on the two DC-3 planes operated by the university. The planes are used to shuttle university executives and the athletic teams around the country for scheduled appearances. The football team is an exception. It travels by commercial charter because of the number of players and personnel involved.

It's a whirl-wind life for the girls who serve as stewardesses. They get to know a lot of people, and see a great many events and places. They take the constant movement in their stride. They are given good accommodations, free meals and free entry to most sporting events.

Perhaps the toughest part of the job is returning to Columbus with a team which has suffered defeat. "It's a dramatic change," says an Angel. "The guys are talkative and jovial and hungry on the way to a game. They usually sleep more and eat less after a lost game."

The Angel Flight girls must have a 2.25 grade average or better to qualify for flight duty. There is no regulation concerning height or hair style, but they must have their parents' consent.

They are trained in flight procedure and first aid. Hostess skills are taught at weekly evening sessions by an airline representative at Ohio State. The Angel Flight is well known for its outstanding coed drill team; formation practice and competitions keep the girls' feet well on the ground, between their alternating spells of duty as stewardesses.

This is all in addition to normal school work. Some girls continue in careers with commercial airlines, so Angel training can be a very practical part of the college experience. And, anyway, an Angel can always feel proud of being more of a "high flier" than most of her fellow students—literally.

Keeping up with schoolwork.

Refreshments—and complimentary smiles.

Theory, too.

The Angel Flight drill team on formation practice. Their winning ways bring them championship honors, too.

A word with the captain in his cockpit.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

NO WAY TO CURE A PHOBIA

Dear Helen: I have lots of fears that I'm trying to get over. Like I used to be terribly afraid of dogs, but I gradually learned to like them by watching a dog from a distance, then getting closer until finally I could pet him.

But I made the mistake of telling my boy friend about my fears and he thinks he'll cure me right now. I'm awfully afraid of heights. So he takes me on steep mountain roads where you have to look straight down, and even makes me get out and look over the edge of cliffs. He says we have to go up to the top of the Empire State Building and I'm afraid to say "NO," and scared silly just thinking about it.

I am also afraid of trains, as we almost had a train accident when I was young, and I can still see that big spotlight from the engine bearing down on us. So the other night, my boy friend parked right in the middle of the railroad tracks and held me there while a freight train rumbled closer. When the engine light was almost on top of us, he moved on. I got hysterical and had to stay in bed two days.

I love my boy friend and know he thinks he's doing right, but please won't you tell him he's driving me crazy? — CYNTHIA

Dear Cynthia: If your boy friend doesn't stop practicing amateur (and totally wrong) "psychiatry," he'll turn your fears into real psychoses! Why don't you consult an EXPERT counsellor — and take your b.f. with you?

A gradual "unlearning" of fears (your "dog" therapy) can save you — not shock treatment! — H.

Dear Helen: I seem to be all mixed up and need to talk to someone, but who? Psychiatrists cost money. My minister or school counsellor just couldn't understand, and besides they knew my family. I'd be too ashamed, I don't have close friends. That's one of my problems, I've even thought of suicide.

Is there any place where a teenager can pour it out without having it come back to his folks? And for free? — DESPERATE BOY, LANCASTER, PA.

Dear Desperate: Your city — Lancaster, Pennsylvania — Has just what you need: TEEN PROBLEMS ANONYMOUS. The number is in your tel.

Here, you may call an anonymous counsellor who will listen wisely, help you re-think your problems and, if necessary, refer you to an expert who will give further aid. You do not need to reveal your name, and your discussions are completely confidential. — H.

BRIDAL SHOWER FOR JANET ROBERTS

The Douglas Building was the setting for a bridal shower honoring Miss Janet Roberts, bride elect of Mr. Al Warren of North Little Rock on Saturday, June 28.

Miss Cindy Snyder registered 50 guests during the evening. The brides table was covered with a lace cloth over green and centered with an arrangement of Shasta daisies. Guests were served individual cakes, punch and mints.

Miss Roberts chose for the evening a brown and white linen costume trimmed in yellow with matching accessories.

Camellia corsages were presented to the honoree and mothers of the bride to be and groom, Mrs. C.L. Roberts of Hope and Mrs. Larry Warren of Thornton.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Wilbur Bolding of Huttig, Mrs. Billy Wells of Little Rock, Mrs. Chad Burke of Crossett, Mrs. Henry Thompson of Gurdon, Mrs. Bill Thompson of Emmet, Mrs. Bill Thomas, St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Carl Dalrymple, Prescott and Mrs. David Barwick of Ruston, La.

Shortage of Meat And Eggs in Vienna

VIENNA (AP) — Czechoslovak officials reported severe shortages of vital foodstuffs and other consumer and industrial goods throughout the country Thursday.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK said: "Czechoslovaks now feel the great shortage of meat and eggs. The situation is worse as no egg imports have been insured and pigs will not be ready for slaughter before the end of this year."

Slovakia's trade ministry reported "greatest shortages have occurred in meat and building materials... but there are also shortages in industrial goods."

Broadcasters to Abandon Orchestras

LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) announced Thursday it plans to drop at least three of its 12 orchestras and play more recorded concert music to cut costs in the 1970s. Britain's musicians union immediately threatened to call all BBC musicians out on strike.

The state-owned BBC is financed by some 18 million license-holders who pay $3 a year for the radios in their cars and homes. The corporation, which carries no advertising, predicted it would be losing $10.8 million a year by 1974 if it did not raise license fees or cut costs. The radio network refuses to carry advertising.

Collins Stays on Board While Others Embark

By NILE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The wags are saying that Michael Collins is like the guy who stayed on the Santa Maria while Columbus went ashore.

While Neil Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. take man's first steps on the moon early on July 21, Collins will pilot the command ship alone in moon orbit 60 miles above them.

"Well, I think I would probably be less than honest if I said I thought I had the best seat of the three," says Air Force Lt. Col. Collins.

"On the other hand, I can also say with complete honesty that I'm happy with the seat that I have... I like to feel they are doing unless I were there doing my third of the part."

"I don't feel the slightest bit frustrated. I couldn't be happier than to be where I am."

A slender, cheerful man of many dimensions, Collins, 38, is neither awed by his destiny nor unduly impressed with the importance of his role in the epic adventure.

"Well, of course, just my own personal viewpoint, I'm not alone anywhere that a couple of Aldrin and previous crews haven't already gone," he said in a recent interview.

"It looks to me that if you took Apollo 11 and the four preceding manned Apollo flights all together — it's sure Neil and Buzz understand."

A suit for all seasons, this three-piece handknit features a sleeveless, square neck shell in multicolor stripe. Knitting instructions up to size 18 are available.

This Is the Year of the Mink

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

Fashion, at least, has bridged the much-talked-of generation gap. Pantsuits, miniskirts, turtlenecks, chains and beads are all over the lot, age notwithstanding. And the slightest changes in design make the same styles right for mom, dad and any of the kids, regardless of sex.

Even elegant mink is in there pitching to win — keeping on top of every new fashion trend for fall.

Mink is no longer the traditional fur it used to be. It's thoroughly with it — in 58 shades of 16 color groups. You can find it from mini to midi to maxi length.

It gets into the gypsy look via a coat of Autumn Haze. Embra natural brown mink with big patch pockets and a gold chain belt.

The flirty skirt that's such a swinger for fall is represented in Tourmaline. Embra natural pale beige mink that falls to a swirling skirt of inverted pleats.

The football season will turn the spotlight on a hooded duffel coat in Autumn Haze with suede closings and buttons or a natural pale beige Tourmaline mink with a stand-up collar that turns down to a mock turtleneck.

The biggest fashion status symbol this coming season is the mottled scarf and not-to-be-outdone natural mink scarves in a variety of shades appear in lengths up to 125 inches. And they can be lined to match your favorite dress or done all around in mink.

Make your look the avante look in a terrific two-toned coat of Azurene. Embra natural blue-gray and Lutetia, natural gun-metal mink. Left: Designed by Fredrica, this "tuned-in" coat features an edge-to-edge zipper closing for that extra small look through the shoulders. The ultrasophisticated coat of Luna raine, Embra natural demibuff mink (right) with deep V-neck, big black bow and a tasseled signature scarf is a Dan Grossman design.

Fun fashions are featuring highest sleeves to create a small look, with giant pockets as a striking contrast. And in Kotah, Embra new rare high-turled mink (the world's most expensive fur) the look is priceless.

Borders of Lynx, sable and other furs add to fashion interest in mink.

American designers working with American mink have helped win the battle of making the American-made mink suit.

The propaganda has been so successful that a leading designer created a vest of Lutetia, natural gunmetal mink, belted in leather. And it's a fact that H.M. can't wait to see a mink suit.

MATCHLESS

in power is God. How generously He deals with His world. All of our physical necessities are miraculously supplied by Him. He planned it so all wild creatures could live in abundance. He pointed us human beings to faith in God and challenged us strongly by citing the birds, "Your Father feedeth them." Then pause by the clear stream, take in the fresh air, examine the fruits of His fields and "Be Still and know that He is God." Just who among us would doubt that He gave us the soil, the seed and the sea??? He gave His church for congregating and praising The Lord. It is here He quickens our spirits by the revelation of truth and goodness and feeds our deeper needs with His love and grace. He is the matchless beneficent.

Steelworkers Leaving Jobs in Canada

TORONTO (AP)—Many steelworkers were reported leaving Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont., today in anticipation of a protracted work stoppage at the mines, mills and smelters of the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

Negotiations between Inco and the United Steelworkers of America were expected to continue at least through the weekend and possibly into next week. The company calls the stoppage a strike and the union calls it a lockout. More than 17,000 workers are affected.

G. L. Barbeau, manager of the union bus depot at Sudbury, said every bus leaving the city was crowded with steelworkers. "It's been busier than a Labor Day weekend," he said.

Inco, one of the world's largest suppliers of nickel which is used to harden steel, is under pressure from the United States and other markets to reach an early settlement. About 25 per

This is only July but we must award the 1969 prize for self-restraint to East. We have known players to remain quiet when their partners make the most atrocious mistakes, but it takes a real diplomat to remain quiet when his partner follows up his mistakes by criticizing him.

West got off to a good lead. The jack of hearts was the best card he could place on the table. What's more, he continued with the 10 after East played the eight and South the five.

South was in with the king, cashed the ace of clubs and led his deuce of diamonds. At this point, West had an automatic good play at his disposal. He should have played his king of diamonds. This play would hold South to just one diamond trick and might even shut the whole diamond suit out. South might duck in dummy and finesse the next time on the theory that West had started with both king and queen.

However, West played the three and the nine was played from dummy. East made the very good play of letting it hold. This held declarer to two diamond tricks. South abandoned the diamonds, led a club from dummy and went right up with the king after East showed out. Then he cashed the ace of spades and led a second diamond. Once more West should have put up the king but he played low. South went up with dummy's ace and threw West in with that well-preserved king. West was in a double-barreled end play and had to give South his ace-queen of spades and jack of clubs.

Here is where East won the prize. He replied, "Sorry, partner. I pulled the wrong card."

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Teeth Extraction Safe During Menstruation

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: Why don't dentists tell their women patients not to have teeth extracted during or immediately after a menstrual period? I learned about it the hard way. I hemorrhaged after a tooth extraction. I'm sure there are many women who have never heard that having a tooth out at such a time can cause excessive bleeding.—Mrs. Maxie B.

ANSWER: According to legend, some women during menstruation have an increased tendency to oral bleeding. The number of women so affected is so insignificant that rarely, if ever, is any type of surgery, either dental or general, postponed because of it.

Reactions during menstruation are highly individual. If you are one of those women who have special problems, this should be communicated to your dentist.

For instance, if it's your experience that you are a bleeder, (women are not "true" bleeders), a test of your blood can be made to determine your blood clotting time, and your dentist will treat you accordingly.

Changes in mucous membrane or reproductive organs during puberty, menstruation, and menopause are sometimes mirrored by changes in mucous membrane of the mouth. This is thought to be due to hormonal imbalance.

Some women complain of inflamed, swollen and bleeding gums which occur with regular frequency during their periods. This type of gingivitis is sometimes referred to as menstrual gingivitis. It's usually not severe, lasting only as long as the period. Only in mouths poorly cared for is there danger of marked infection and then it's because of superimposed or secondary infection.

Not many dentists even think it's necessary to include questions about menstruation in their pre-surgery history taking. Yet some exodontists say that it's their clinical experience that a higher percentage of "dry sockets" occur when teeth extractions are done during the menstrual period. There is no medical proof of this.

Says Teachers Will Rebel on Transfer Orders

CHICAGO (AP)—The president of the Chicago Teachers Union says its members will rebel against mandatory transfers of teachers to integrate the city's schools.

"Many teachers, both black and white, will not accept forcible transfer," John Desmond said Thursday. "Transfer is one of the concerns that teachers hold dear."

Desmond blamed the city's Board of Education for the unbalanced number of white teachers in black, inner-city schools.

HOPE NEWSPAPER HISTORY:
The 1929 consolidation joined the two principal newspaper lines dating back to within five years of Hope's incorporation in 1875.

1899 — Star of Hope founded as a weekly by Claude Mc-Corkle; converted to an evening daily by his son, Ed. McCorkle, publishing until the 1929 consolidation.

The opposition line:
1880 — Hope News founded by Lowry Brothers.
1883 — Sold to Withers & Johnson, name changed to Hope Telegraph.

1883 — Later in same year resold to Claude McCorkle and renamed Hope Mercury.

1884 — Sold to James H. Betts, who named it Hope Gazette, under which name it was published continuously until 1922, published by
Betts, J.L. Tullis, and Col. W.W.
Folsom the last-named dying in 1916.

1916 — Purkins & Gates bought the weekly Gazette and made it a companion paper to their new daily, Arkansas Evening Herald — but both papers suspended in 1922.

1926 — Plant was revived by Curtis Cannon as the weekly
Hempstead County Review.

1927 — Cannon sold plant to D.A. Gean, who established the morning Hope Daily Press.

1929 — C.E. Palmer and A.H.
Washburn consolidated The Star and the Press as Hope Star, with Palmer as president and Washburn secretary-treasurer.

1957 — Following Mr. Palmer's death Mrs. Palmer became president.

1969 — With Mrs. Palmer's retirement from Star Publishing Co. Washburn became 76 per cent owner and president — balance 24 per cent being held by Texarkana Newspapers, Inc.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Teeth Extraction Safe During Menstruation

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: Why don't dentists tell their women patients not to have teeth extracted during or immediately after a menstrual period? I learned about it the hard way. I hemorrhaged after a tooth extraction. I'm sure there are many women who have never heard that having a tooth out at such a time can cause excessive bleeding. — Mrs. Maxie B.

ANSWER: According to legend, some women during menstruation have an increased tendency to oral bleeding. The number of women so affected is so insignificant that rarely, if ever, is any type of surgery, either dental or general, postponed because of it.

Reactions during menstruation are highly individual. If you are one of those women who have special problems, this should be communicated to your dentist.

For instance, if it's your experience that you are a bleeder, (women are not "true" bleeders), a test of your blood can be made to determine your blood clotting time, and your dentist will treat you accordingly.

Changes in mucous membrane or reproductive organs during puberty, menstruation, and menopause are sometimes mirrored by changes in mucous membrane of the mouth. This is thought to be due to hormonal imbalance.

Some women complain of inflamed, swollen and bleeding gums which occur with regular frequency during their periods. This type of gingivitis is sometimes referred to as menstrual gingivitis. It's usually not severe, lasting only as long as the period. Only in mouths poorly cared for is there danger of marked infection and then it's because of superimposed or secondary infection.

Not many dentists even think it's necessary to include questions about menstruation in their presurgery history taking. Yet some exodontists say that it's their clinical experience that a higher percentage of "dry sockets" occur when teeth extractions are done during the menstrual period. There is no medical proof of this.

If extractions are done in a hospital, blood exams are routinely done and blood clotting time is part of the preoperative testing. Clotting time in normal persons who are menstruating is usually within normal limits.

This is only July but we must award the 1969 prize for self-restraint to East. We have known players to remain quiet when their partners make the most atrocious mistakes, but it takes a real diplomat to remain quiet when his partner follows up his mistakes by criticizing him.

West got off to a good lead. The jack of hearts was the best card he could place on the table. What's more, he continued with the 10 after East played the eight and South the five.

South was in with the king, cashed the ace of clubs and led his deuce of diamonds. At this point, West had an automatic good play at his disposal. He should have played his king of diamonds. This play would hold South to just one diamond trick and might even shut the whole diamond suit out. South might duck in dummy and finesse the next time in the theory that West had started with both king and queen.

However, West played the three and the nine was played from dummy. East made the very good play of letting it hold. This held declarer to two diamond tricks.

South abandoned the diamonds, led a club from dummy and went right up with the king after East showed out. Then he cashed the ace of spades and led a second diamond. Once more West should have put up the king but he played low. South went up with dummy's ace and threw West in with that well-preserved king. West was in a double-barreled end play and had to give South his ace-queen of spades and jack of clubs.

Here is where East won the prize. He replied, "Sorry, partner. I pulled the wrong card."

You, South, hold:

A—Your partner is trying to get to seven. We would base our next bid on our knowledge of our partner. Either six or seven hearts or diamonds is a possible bid, although we slightly favor the conservative six diamonds.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Again your partner opens one heart. This time you hold:

IAPA Gives Timely Stress
To Press Freedom

In the statement of President Agustín E. Edwards of the Inter-American Press Association on Saturday, timely and thought-provoking emphasis was given to the never-ending battle for free access to information in all the countries of the Western Hemisphere.

In addition to a stern denunciation of such governments as Cuba's where the civil rights of the people are trampled under foot and there is no press freedom at all, President Edwards points out that it is the duty of the members of the IAPA to keep alive an awareness of the need for press freedom. He said:

"We must strive to make this right so evident, so publicly sacred, that the governments of our hemisphere will touch it only at the cost of outraging all public feeling." He further challenged the membership to scrutinize the purity of its motives and the honesty of its actions in serving all the people's interests.

"We can condemn and protest only if we can demonstrate publicly and constantly that we truly serve the great function of transmitting accurate information," Mr. Edwards declared.

The major emphasis of Press Freedom Day each June points toward many Latin American countries where there is no such freedom, but in a much larger sense it cannot be taken for granted in the northern half of the Western Hemisphere and especially in the United States of America.

There are always those on the local, state and national levels who feel they know what is best for the people to read or hear. There have been three major attempts at passage of censorship laws in the North Carolina General Assembly at the current session. Other states report similar experiences. In the Congress and the federal bureaucracy there are almost daily violations of press freedom either at the pretext of national security or some other excuse.

These will be eliminated only if the press and all news media are vigilant in their stewardship, in building a greater awareness to the threats to press freedom, and the militant support of the people which will assure its continuity. Success to the IAPA and its constructive and vital efforts throughout the Western Hemisphere. —Kinston (N.C.) Daily Free Press

Skirting The Issue

Miniskirts could become a target for the National Safety Council, if not for legislation. The distraction they cause to motorists is too obvious to need spelling out. And it endangers women drivers, who gape unbelievably, as well as men, who may stare appreciatively.

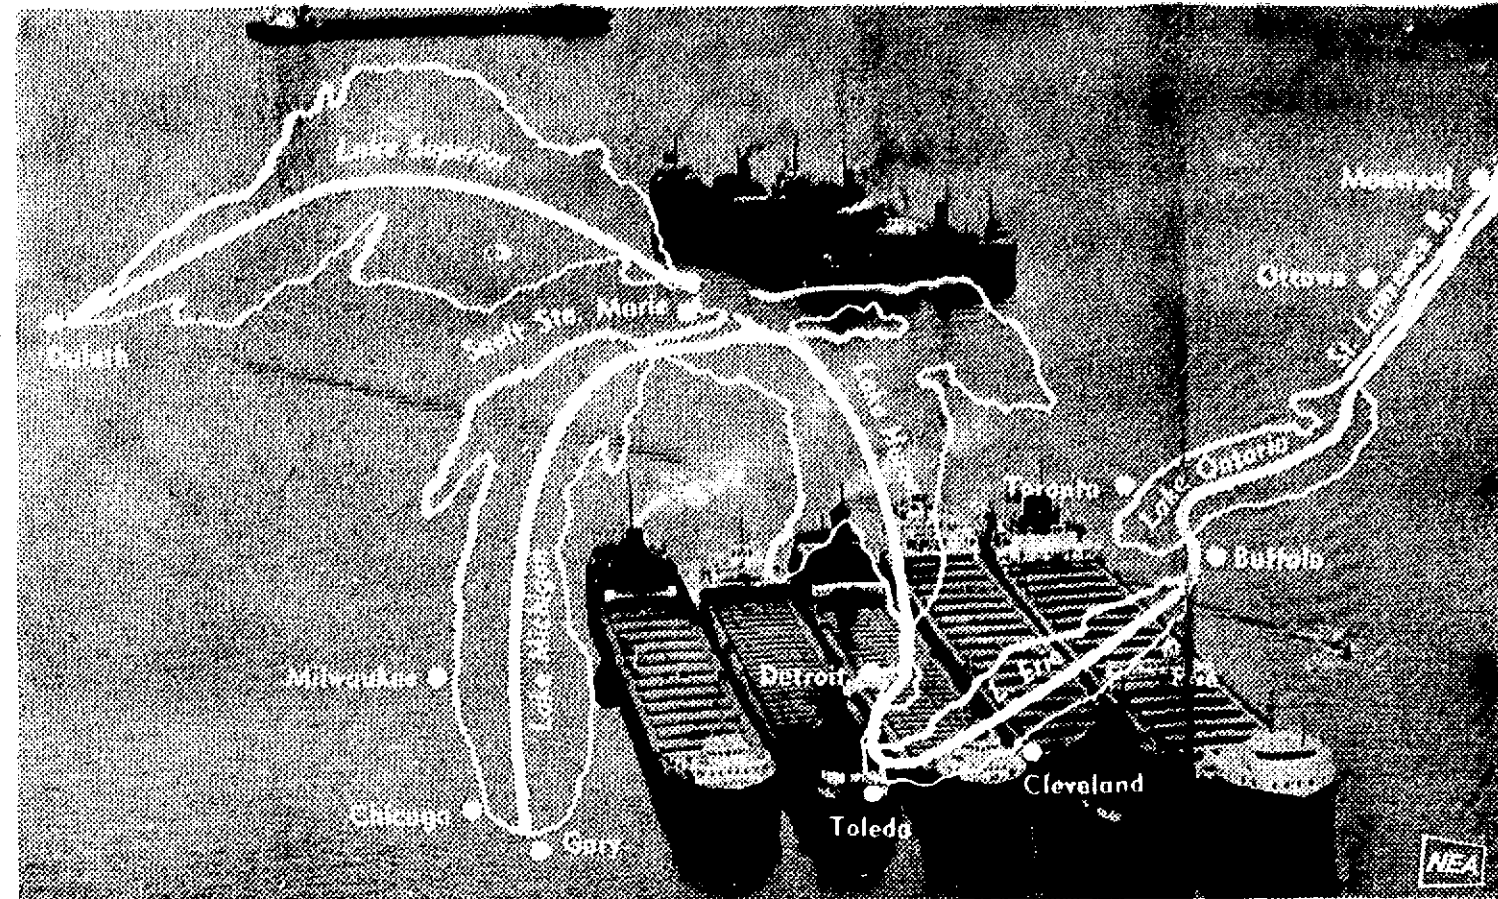

For example, a 60-year-old businessman in Charleston, W. Va., was backing out of a parking space when his eye was drawn to a miniskirted girl. Watching her, he kept on backing out and smacked into the side of a police car that was pulling in behind him. No charges were filed in that case, but the damage to both cars was estimated at $90.

People who think "there ought to be a law" for everything are bound to start agitating for a ban on miniskirts. Meantime, we look to the Safety Council for helpful suggestions. Blinders, maybe? —Miami (Fla.) Herald

U.S. Agrees to Nuclear Missile Agreement

BRUSSELS (AP) — Allied diplomats reported today the United States is ready to discuss curbing nuclear missiles with the Soviet Union without demanding on-the-ground inspections that Moscow has rejected in the past.

Their disclosure followed several briefings at North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters by Philip Farley, No. 2 man on the U.S. negotiating team in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) proposed by President Nixon.

IT'S TEN YEARS OLD and early skeptics of a 2,342-mile inland waterway have been proven wrong by the St. Lawrence Seaway. Despite success of the lock system which opened the Canadian interior and American Midwest to ocean traffic, officials still look for ways to better the waterway. Average per-ship tonnage has increased from about 2,800 tons in 1959, the system's first year, to about 7,300 tons in 1968. Estimated total cargo traffic for 1968 was a record-setting 52 million tons.

$80,425 Grant for Ark. Low Enforcement

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Commission on Crime and Law Enforcement parceled $80,425 in federally provided funds Thursday to Arkansas law enforcement agencies.

The funds are part of $241,570 provided under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

The grants, with amounts, went to:

Arkadelphia Police Department, $3,124; Boone County Sheriff's Department, $2,124; Carroll County Sheriff's Department, $1,740; Desha County Sheriff's Department, $6,608; Dumas Police Department, $4,129; Fort Smith Municipal Court, $201; Greene County Sheriff's Department, $4,373; Harrison Police Department, $1,230; Little Rock Police Department, $10,434; Magnolia Police Department, $465; Monticello Police Department, $2,629; Pulaski County Sheriff's Department, $6,542; Arkansas Law Enforcement Training Academy, $31,398; Blytheville Police Department, $5,428.

Applications were reviewed by the commission according to priorities established by Arkansas' first-year plan, which was approved by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration of the U.S. Justice Department.

The $241,570 received by the state is to implement the first year of the crime control program. A number of applications are still being processed, and some have been held up for additional information before consideration can be given, Hickey said.

Troops Kiss Commander Bye, Head Home

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — The first U.S. troops withdrawn from Vietnam made their final formation Thursday night, said goodbye to their commander, and set off for home leave.

The 788 men earlier had paraded and dined in Seattle, where they heard Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor describe their return as "tangible evidence of our progress" toward reducing the American military commitment in Vietnam.

As Resor addressed the members of the 3rd Battalion, 60th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division, his remarks occasionally were blurred by the shouts of antiwar demonstrators demanding a "Bring them all home now!"

The jeers of demonstrators had been matched by cheers from the crowd as the men marched through a chill rain, each carrying a red rose presented by women bank employees.

Boston Operates Hippie Hotels

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Redevelopment Authority is leasing two of its buildings for use as hippie hostels this summer.

The hostels will be operated under stringent rules and supervised by the Massachusetts Council of Churches. The authority leased the properties for $1 each through Sept. 30.

Males and females will be separated; no drugs will be allowed; guests are subject to search; no visitors are allowed after 9:30 p.m., and lights-out is at 12:30 a.m.

Guests also will be called on to be discreet in areas outside the hostels to prevent neighborhood wrath.

The rate is 25 cents a night.

One hostel is in the Back Bay, the other in the South End.

Ways and Means Wants to Tax Bond Interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has decided tentatively that federal subsidies should be offered to encourage state and municipal governments to finance improvements with bonds which carry taxable interest.

But the plan would allow the states and municipalities the option of using their traditional method of low-interest, tax-free bonds if they so desired.

In a move destined to draw opposition from investment bankers, public power associations, and state and local government officials, the committee opened the door for the first time to federal taxation of interest on the development bonds.

Chairman Wilbur Mills was expected to make the committee's action official today in announcing progress made toward a tax reform package which he hopes to deliver to the House by Aug. 13.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., is sponsor of the bond subsidy plan to compensate the states and municipalities with a subsidy for paying higher interest rates which would be required for bonds with taxable interest.

Ullman, in announcing the committee's action Thursday, said he thinks there's something in it for everyone: the federal government will begin to close a gaping tax loophole; the development bonds will be more attractive and easier to sell to the bulk of investors; and state and local governments can make their own choice.

Beyond the opposition of government bodies who are reluctant to alter their present policies for bonds, the committee is facing the constitutional question of whether it is legal for the federal government to levy a tax on the interest of bonds issued by the lower levels of government.

Berlin Lowers Voting Age

BERLIN (AP) — The voting age in West Berlin municipal elections was lowered from 20 to 18 in a city parliament vote Thursday. The age for those seeking city office was lowered from 25 to 23.

B and PW Celebrates Golden Anniversary on Moon Launch Date

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Next Wednesday, July 16 will mark an important step forward for man, when a ship is launched with the moon as its destination, exactly 50 years before, on July 16, 1919, another project was launched in St. Louis, Mo., that was very much like "shooting for the moon."

That 212 women from widely diverse backgrounds and geographical sections could assemble and in a few days agree to become part of a national group, would be a great deal to expect even today. Yet that is just what was accomplished when the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was formed in a four-day meeting in July, 1919. If it was not astounding to the participants, it certainly was to much of the nation.

The National Federation Story is one of working women seeking and taking responsibility for their particular views and their consequent actions. The group has continued essentially unchanged in its basic goals, objectives, and approaches for a half century.

The St. Louis meeting of business and professional women was the out-growth of a YWCA conference at New York in May, 1918, called to consider ways for women to assist in the war effort. It was the first real attempt to organize all the business women in the United States.

The YWCA report said, "The power which might be generated from such an organization... no one can estimate."

Of the many capable, vital, and influential women who helped to organize the business and professional women in our country, one name returns again and again — Lena Madessin Phillips of Nicholasville, Ky., a lawyer in private practice who followed in the career footsteps of her father, a judge. She had a leading role in the life of the National Federation and was described as "its master dream-builder." She demurred at informal queries about her availability for nomination as the first president, but she did accept the position of executive secretary of the organization. Later, she became its fifth president (1926-29). She is credited with founding the International Federation of Business and Professional Women in 1930, an organization now encompassing a total of 40 countries.

Employed women formally began in 1919 to let the nation know they expected others to believe in them because they believed in themselves. The clarion call ringing loudest was for equal opportunity, equal pay and equal treatment for working women. Yet equally prominent was the call for understanding and acceptance of the responsibilities of working women.

Before the delegates left St. Louis, they had charted a course of great activity for themselves and their fellow members. Annual dues, not without some wrangling, had been set at 25 cents per capita. A number of standing committees had been established, notably for research, membership and legislation.

Their legacy of responsible business womanhood will be remembered on the National Federation's Golden Anniversary Day, July 16, 1969, in communities throughout the country. Those observances and the National Federation's Golden Anniversary Convention in St. Louis on July 20-24, 1969, will be far more than a sentimental evocation of the time and place of the group's beginning. Amid due ceremony, both will comprise a rededication of the National Federation, for the next half century, to its continuing goal of advancing the interest of the country's working women.

Nixon Turns to Senate for Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffed by a House subcommittee, the Nixon administration turned to the Senate today for support of a nationwide voting rights law to replace a 1965 act limited to southern states.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was called before the Senate Judiciary Committee's constitutional rights subcommittee, where the administration bill is regarded as having a slight edge.

A House Judiciary subcommittee approved Thursday, by what Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., called an overwhelming voice vote, a bill to extend the 1965 Voting Rights Act for five years beyond Aug. 6, 1970.

The administration's proposal for a new law was not even put up for a vote. The full House Judiciary Committee is expected to approve the extension bill next week.

But in the Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., backers of an extension of the present law concede their chances are dim. They figure they can count on the votes of only three of the eight members.

Already there is talk of trying to bypass the Judiciary Committee and bring the House bill directly before the Senate—strategy that has been used in the past to enact civil rights legislation.

The administration bill, like the 1965 act, would ban the use of voter literacy tests and authorize use of federal registrars, but it would apply to all 50 states instead of just six southern states and part of a seventh.

It also would prohibit the states from imposing residency requirements for voting in presidential elections.

One of the most controversial parts of the administration bill would eliminate a requirement in the 1965 act that the southern states get prior approval of any election law changes. Under the proposed new law, the attorney general would be authorized to bring court action to block a change he found discriminatory.

Grand Jury Charges 15 With Brutality

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A federal grand jury has charged 15 persons with brutal treatment of inmates in four Arkansas penal institutions.

It returned 46 indictments Friday, charging that the defendants, "under color of law," willfully imposed summary punishment on one or more inmates, depriving them of their constitutional rights.

Jim Bruton, former superintendent of the Tucker Prison Farm unit of the state penitentiary, was named in 19 of the 39 indictments that charged former employees and trusty guards with brutality at Tucker from 1964 through 1966.

Bruton was charged with punishing inmates or causing them to be punished by electrical shocks, whippings with a leather strap and the use of such objects as pliers and hypodermic needles.

The other indictments were against prison employees, other former employees or trusty guards in the state penitentiary and at penal farms in Pulaski and Mississippi counties.

Gary L. Haydis, former assistant superintendent of Cummins Prison Farm, and two Cummins employees, Lawrence E. Hudson and G. W. Thompson, were indicted as a result of an incident last Oct. 14 in which guards fired birdshot into about 100 inmates who refused to stop a sit-down strike. Twenty-four convicts were wounded.

Cummins, which with Tucker forms the state penitentiary, was the site of the discovery earlier in 1968 of three skeletons in unmarked graves. Inmates and former Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton claimed that they were the skeletons of murdered convicts, but a pathologist later said the three probably died of natural causes.

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller told a news conference after the announcement of the grand jury action: "I am really very pleased that at the end of 30 months of my administration and after some persistent efforts on our part to get some action taken, federal authorities have seen fit to issue some indictments."

Judge J. Smith Henley of U.S. District Court called the grand jury into session Tuesday at the request of the Justice Department, which investigated the penitentiary after the October shooting.

Bruton resigned as Tucker superintendent in 1966 shortly before a state police investigation of the farm uncovered inmate allegations of brutality, torture and illegal traffic in liquor and drugs.

Bruton later was charged in state court with excessive punishment of inmates, but the Arkansas law on which the charge was based was declared unconstitutional and the charge was dropped.

The grand jury took testimony from inmates who testified about whippings with a leather strap and about the "Tucker telephone," a device used to send an electrical charge into convicts. Use of the strap was stopped by the state Board of Correction in February 1968 and later was declared unconstitutional. Use of the "Tucker telephone" was stopped as a result of the 1966 state police investigation.

Herman Belk, an assistant warden at the Pulaski County Penal Farm, and Gene Emmerling, a former assistant warden, were indicted in the death of Curtis Lee Ingram Jr., 18, a Negro of Little Rock, last Aug. 2 at the penal farm.

Belk was charged with causing Ingram "to be beaten with a piece of wood" and Emmerling with choking, kneeling and pouring hot water on Ingram, whose death touched off a brief flurry of racial trouble in Little Rock.

Bruce McCortley, 34, a white trusty at the time, is serving a three-year sentence for involuntary manslaughter in Ingram's death.

Right Answer, Wrong Politics

MIAMI (AP) — Metropolitan Court Judge Tom Lee told Brian Southard that three traffic charges against him would be dropped if the 21-year-old man registered to vote.

Judge Lee listened as an elections clerk asked Southard his party affiliation and the youth replied, "Republican."

"And after I went to all that trouble," said the judge, who described himself as a "wretched Democrat."

Mid-East Faces Tense Summer War Jitters

By ROY ESSOYAN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT (AP) — The Middle East faces another summer of tension and war jitters. Peace appears remote, but so are prospects of a major showdown.

The Arabs freely concede they won't be ready for a big confrontation with Israel for at least another year. And the Israelis say they don't need any more Arab territory.

The Arab-Israeli war has never really stopped since 1967. It paused briefly after the Israelis won the last showdown—the six-day war in June of that year—but resumed within weeks with air, naval, artillery and commando strikes by both sides.

Israel and the Arab world are so accustomed to the hostilities they tend to turn a deaf ear to frequent warnings from U.N. Secretary-General U Thant about the threat of a general war.

"We consider ourselves at war," Egypt's official spokesman, Mohamed Hassan el Zayat, said Wednesday.

Because each side knows there won't be a showdown in the immediate future, they evidence little alarm at the steady escalation in fighting. In the last eight months, artillery duels across the Suez Canal and the Jordan River have become daily affairs.

Aerial dogfights are growing in frequency. Since the 1967 war, the Israelis claim to have downed 37 Egyptian and Syrian planes, 17 of them in the last two weeks. The Arabs claim to have downed at least as many Israeli planes, but Israel has rarely conceded an aircraft loss.

The Israelis have realized they cannot blast Arab air power out of existence as easily as they did in June 1967. The Egyptian and Syrian air forces move are scattered around secret bases throughout the Arab world.

The Arabs are expected to maintain their pressure against Israel on all fronts and apparently feel they have little to lose—except arms, ammunition and the lives of their commandos. The arms and ammunition flow in from the Communist bloc on easy credit terms and the human toll has been relatively light.

The Arabs feel they have much to gain from continued pressure on the Israelis. It helps maintain Arab morale, mollifies extremist demands for a war of liberation and places an increasing strain on Israel's economy.

Editor Fined for Publishing Prison Report

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Editor Laurence Gandar, who published reports on prison conditions in South Africa, was ordered today to pay a $280 fine or serve three months in jail on charges of failing to take "reasonable steps" to verify the reports.

Gandar's chief reporter on the Rand Daily Mail, Benjamin Pogrand, got suspended sentences of three months each on two counts.

Both Gandar and Pogrand had faced up to two years in prison plus $280 fines on each of the two counts in the case which was generally viewed as a barometer on the future of press freedom in South Africa.

The sentencing by South Africa's Supreme Court came after an eight-month legal tussle in which both defendants pleaded innocent of violating South Africa's Prisons Act.

Red Rocket Hits U.S. Post, One Killed

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — An enemy rocket fired into a 9th Division processing center killed one American soldier and wounded seven just three days before they were scheduled to go home, the U.S. Command said today.

The command said the Soviet-built 107mm rocket exploded Thursday afternoon near the center at Dong Tam.

The rocket killed two Americans and wounded 21. Eight of these were members of the 4th Battalion, 47th Infantry, which is scheduled to fly to the United States Sunday.

It will be the second 800-man battalion of the 9th Division to leave under President Nixon's order to cut U.S. troop strength by 25,000 men by the end of August.

At about the same time, the 9th Marine Regimental Landing Team will begin moving from near the demilitarized zone to Quang Tri in central Vietnam before boarding ships for Okinawa.

However, the 9th Marines may be delayed by a typhoon nearing the coast.

The withdrawals that have been completed and are scheduled this weekend involve 10,000 men. The U.S. Command said under its present timetable, August withdrawal deadline may be beaten by several weeks.

Although a lull continued in ground fighting, headquarters reports indicated some increase in small scale skirmishes and shelling across South Vietnam.

The most dramatic firefight reported resulted in the liberation of a badly wounded American soldier who had been missing and evidently held captive by enemy forces for two months.

An enemy defector reported the location of the wounded man, identified as Spec. 4 Larry D. Aiken of Jamaica, N.Y., and a South Vietnamese reconnaissance force went by helicopter into the jungle area about 30 miles southwest of Da Nang.

In a sharp firefight, six North Vietnamese were killed and two captured. Then the wounded American was taken by helicopter to a field hospital. U.S. officers said the soldier was not wounded in the firefight but was unable to tell exactly how old his wound was.

There was little pattern in the skirmishes and shelling reported from about 30 areas in the past 24 hours. There was a possibility that the actions foreshadowed a predicted upsurge in enemy activity, but for the moment U.S. officers withheld judgment.

The most sensitive area, however, appeared to be the infiltration corridor northwest of Saigon in Tay Ninh Province along the Cambodian border northwest of the capital.

The U.S. Command reported three B52 strikes overnight in Tay Ninh Province, all hitting the slopes of Black Virgin Mountain which dominates the area.

It was the first time the big Strategic Air Command jets have been used against the mountain, although smaller fighter bombers and artillery have pounded it repeatedly.

Called Nui Ba Den by the Vietnamese, the mountain long has been an enemy stronghold with a small group of U.S. and South Vietnamese troops on top, enemy troops on the slopes and other allied forces at the base.

Only Joking, Says Churchman

BOSTON (AP) — Tiltford Dudley, director of national affairs for the United Church of Christ, said he was kidding when he boarded an American Airlines plane and asked the stewardess how long it would take the plane to get to Cuba.

But he was convicted Thursday in East Boston District Court on a charge of disturbing the peace and was ordered to pay a $200 fine.

Judge Guy J. Rignatto told Dudley he was "absolutely amazed that a man of your high education and a member of the bar would make a crack like that."

Yaz Leads Red Sox With Homers

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Carl Yastrzemski has joined the Harmon Killebrew-Ken Harrelson July slugging parade and he's brought the whole Boston Red Sox squad along for the ride.

Yastrzemski walloped a homer in each game Friday night as the Red Sox romped over Baltimore twice 7-4 and 12-3. That gave Yaz four homers in Boston's last four starts, a pace comparable to the ones Harrelson and Killebrew are toting around the American League.

Harrelson's grand slam helped Cleveland rip Detroit 8-1 and was his fifth homer in eight days. Killebrew unloaded a pair of shots in Minnesota's 9-3 drubbing of Seattle and raised his totals to 27 for the season and nine in the last 10 days.

Yastrzemski and the Red Sox clawed Baltimore pitching for 30 hits in the doubleheader, 22 of them in the second-game romp that reduced the Orioles' East Division lead to 1 1/2 games.

Elsewhere, New York nipped Washington 4-3, Kansas City topped Chicago 8-5 and Oakland blanked California 3-0.

In the National League, Montreal bombed New York 11-4, Philadelphia trimmed Chicago 7-5, St. Louis dropped Philadelphia 6-1, Houston rapped Cincinnati 13-2, Atlanta downed San Diego 6-3 and San Francisco topped Los Angeles 6-4 in 10 innings.

Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith drove in nine runs and scored eight more between them as the Red Sox ripped the Orioles. Smith tagged a three-run homer for Boston's winning margin in the opener after Yastrzemski's seventh-inning homer had snapped a tie.

Then Yaz blasted a three-run shot in the first inning of the nightcap. Mike Andrews had five straight hits in the second game and Smith rapped seven hits in the twin bill, extending his streak to 19 games, longest in the American League this season.

Killebrew drove in four runs with his two homers and a double, lifting his major league leading RBI total to 90. His nine homers in the first 11 days of July make him a threat to the single month record of 18 set by Rudy York in 1937.

Ted Uhlaender also had a two-run homer for the Twins.

Harrelson, who has hit four homers in Cleveland's last five games, unloaded in a six-run third inning. It was his second career grand slam and made things easy for Sam McDowell, who won his 11th with a four-hitter.

Jim Price homered for the Tigers' only run, depriving McDowell of his shutout with two out in the ninth.

Mel Stottlemyre scattered 10 hits and won his 13th game of the season, beating Washington for the Yankees. Horace Clarke's first-pitch homer in the first inning ignited a three-run Yankee rally. Joe Peplone drove in a pair of runs for New York and Lee Maye homered for Washington.

Bob Taylor's eight-inning pinch single drove in the tie-breaking run and then Paul Schaaf singled a pair of insurance runs across, helping Kansas City top Chicago. Bill Melton drove in three runs for the White Sox, one of them with his 14th homer of the season.

Low Krausse scattered seven hits and pitched his first complete game of the season, shutting out California for Oakland. Reggie Jackson drove in two of the A's runs with a fifth-inning double.

National League Has Its Upsets

By MIKE BRYSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Mets and the Chicago Cubs started a brief breather from each other... and wound up gasping.

The Los Angeles Dodgers ran into Bobby Bonds... and wound up second.

The Mets, who took two of three games from the Cubs in New York this week, were stunned 11-4 by lowly Montreal Friday night, while almost-as-lowly Philadelphia came from behind to knock off the Cubs 7-5.

That left the front-running Cubs and the Mets, who resume their crucial showdown in Chicago Monday, separated by four games in the National League East.

Bonds, meanwhile, singled in two runs in the 10th inning—after keying a tying ninth-inning rally—as San Francisco dropped Los Angeles out of first in the West with a 6-4 triumph.

Atlanta, which rallied for three runs in the last inning to beat San Diego 6-3, took over the top spot, one-half game ahead of the Dodgers.

St. Louis stopped Pittsburgh 6-1 and Houston trounced Cincinnati 13-2 in other NL games.

In the American League, Boston swept a doubleheader from Baltimore 7-4 and 12-3, Cleveland whipped Detroit 8-1, New York edged Washington 4-3, Oakland blanked California 3-0, Kansas City defeated Chicago 8-5 and Minnesota ripped Seattle 9-3.

The Expos, who had a four-game losing streak and the worst record of any NL team, assaulted the Mets with a 15-hit attack, including a double and two singles by pitcher Mike Wegener, good for four RBIs.

Wegener, a 22-year-old rookie, won his fourth in 11 decisions, but needed late help from Dick Radatz.

He was backed by Bobby Wine's two-run homer, his first of the year; Gary Sutherland's two-RBI double, and Mack Jones' 15th homer, a solo job.

Ron Brand also contributed three hits and scored three times.

The Cubs grabbed a 5-3 lead with a pair of runs in the eighth, but Philadelphia came right back in the ninth on homers by Ron Stone and Johnny Briggs and Tony Taylor's run-scoring single.

Briggs slammed his eighth of the year, and second of the game, to lead off the inning before Stone hit his first of the season.

Singles by Mike Ryan, pinch hitter Dave Watkins and Taylor then produced the eighth loss in 12 games for the sagging Cubs.

Bonds, who hit his winning two-out single to center after a walk, Hal Lanier's single and another walk, contributed a double and scored one run when the Giants came up with two to tie it 4-4 in the ninth.

Willie Davis' two-run single and Wes Parker's RBI single had staked Los Angeles to a 4-2 lead in the seventh before Bonds helped the Giants to their 11th victory in 14 games. It moved them into third place, two games back of the Braves.

Pinch-hitter Bob Aspromonte singled in two runs and Felipe Alou singled in one in the ninth as Atlanta handed San Diego its fifth straight.

The Man... And His Magic

Babe Ruth All-Stars Announced

By IRA BERKOW, NEA Sports Editor

CHICAGO—(NEA)—To get to his throne room you have to walk past the carpeted locker area of the players and then up some stairs and past the coffee urns on the right and the whirlpool and rubbing tables on the left and through a short corridor which seems always dark and ominous and then, finally, the large, sort of swell office of Leo Ernest Durocher, manager of the Chicago Cubs.

"When he comes out of the office, maybe to play cards with some of us, or even to go onto the field," said Don Young, the quiet youthful outfielder with the Princeton haircut, "the players turn to look, maybe not stare, but catch a look anyway. And you hear them saying, 'There's Leo—he's coming down.' It's kind of awesome."

"There's something about him," said Coach Joe Amalfitano, who was a rookie infielder when Leo won his last pennant, 1954 with the New York Giants, "that when he tells you something you want to go out and run through a wall for the guy."

"Maybe," said pitcher Ken Holtzman, "maybe it's his voice that makes him so inspirational. I don't know, kind of demanding."

Durocher sits there in his throne room with his legs up but careful not to place his spike shoes on the long blond-wood desk. He is nearly 64 years old now, but looks younger despite his slicked-back, graying, receding hair and the deep lines in his tanned and freckled forehead and the ruts running alongside his mouth that the French call "bitterness creases."

His movements are always animated, his blue eyes can be warm or darting. When he speaks, his lips purse and what he says is bell-clear both in sound and meaning. And, pick the mercurial moment, he can be brash, charming, insolent, sweet, incisive, reminiscent, mendacious. But never dull.

It is still early in the season, as everyone in baseball is quick to remind, yet the Cubs have been playing so well and winningly that the chances of them not getting into the National League playoffs—and even into the World Series—appear slim.

The Cubs have not won a pennant since 1945. From 1948 through 1966 they never finished higher than fifth. Twenty straight seasons in the second division established a major league record for bumbling.

Durocher took over this team after the 1965 season, when

CHICAGO—(NEA)—To get to his throne room you have to walk past the carpeted locker area of the players and then up some stairs and past the coffee urns on the right and the whirlpool and rubbing tables on the left and through a short corridor which seems always dark and ominous and then, finally, the large, sort of swell office of Leo Ernest Durocher, manager of the Chicago Cubs.

"When he comes out of the office, maybe to play cards with some of us, or even to go onto the field," said Don Young, the quiet youthful outfielder with the Princeton haircut, "the players turn to look, maybe not stare, but catch a look anyway. And you hear them saying, 'There's Leo—he's coming down.' It's kind of awesome."

"There's something about him," said Coach Joe Amalfitano, who was a rookie infielder when Leo won his last pennant, 1954 with the New York Giants, "that when he tells you something you want to go out and run through a wall for the guy."

"Maybe," said pitcher Ken Holtzman, "maybe it's his voice that makes him so inspirational. I don't know, kind of demanding."

Durocher sits there in his throne room with his legs up but careful not to place his spike shoes on the long blond-wood desk. He is nearly 64 years old now, but looks younger despite his slicked-back, graying, receding hair and the deep lines in his tanned and freckled forehead and the ruts running alongside his mouth that the French call "bitterness creases."

His movements are always animated, his blue eyes can be warm or darting. When he speaks, his lips purse and what he says is bell-clear both in sound and meaning. And, pick the mercurial moment, he can be brash, charming, insolent, sweet, incisive, reminiscent, mendacious. But never dull.

It is still early in the season, as everyone in baseball is quick to remind, yet the Cubs have been playing so well and winningly that the chances of them not getting into the National League playoffs—and even into the World Series—appear slim.
